C.W. Swain House

As the population of the town grew, so did the need for housing. Here a construction crew, most likely a group of neighborhood men, builds a home on Church Street. Today one can still see the picket fence, as well as the spire of the Methodist church over the roof of this extant home. The man in the suit at the center is lone builder C. W. Swain.
